

Dear AME

BA have requested that we send the following message to all AMEs.

Maternity Leave Cover – British Airways

British Airways is looking for a locum occupational physician with aviation knowledge to cover maternity leave starting in July 2018. You will be part of an in-house specialist team providing occupational and aviation medical advice to both the OH nursing team and the business. The range of work is exciting, diverse and challenging. In short, you will help ensure our people, passengers and policies are always in the best possible health.

As a minimum, you'll need to be GMC registered with a licence to practice in the UK, and have experience and qualifications in Occupational Medicine. Ideally you will be on the Specialist Register for Occupational Medicine, and also have experience and qualifications in Aviation Medicine.
