FOIA reference: F0001214

Dear XXXX

I am writing in respect of your recent application of 12 September 2011, for the release of information held by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA).

Your request:

“Do you hold any data or information that might allow me to assess the numbers of planes/or the hours that planes spend circling around UK airports while they wait for a landing slot”.

Our response:

In assessing your request in line with the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000, we are pleased to be able to provide the information below.

The CAA does not routinely collect information of this kind at UK airports. However as part of the performance reporting requirements under its licence, Nats EnRoute Ltd (NERL) provides data on the times that aircraft are held in stacks. The figures for calendar year 2010, showing the average holding times per aircraft, are as follows:

Heathrow - 4.41 minutes
Manchester - 0.46 minutes
Stansted - 0.28 minutes
Gatwick - 0.69 minutes
Edinburgh - 0.18 minutes
Birmingham - 0.17 minutes
Glasgow - 0.27 minutes
East Midlands - 0.11 minutes
Luton - 0.09 minutes
London City - 0.29 minutes

This information only covers airports for which NATS provides an approach service and where holding routinely occurs, and information provided by NERL for which the CAA have no responsibility in terms of accuracy or integrity of the data. Information on other airports could only be derived by asking the airport concerned. At some of these other airports and at airfields with a predominance of General Aviation (GA) traffic (eg London / Oxford), holding will be largely for the purpose of training flights.
