Dear [REDACTED]

Thank you for your request of 23 May 2025, for the release of information held by the Civil Aviation Authority (CAA). For reference your original enquiry was as follows:

I am looking for information concerning the flight departure and arrival times for the above flight [BA2643 Malaga to LGW 28-29 April 2025]. The information provided by BA differs significantly from the actual times noted by myself and other passengers. I believe that BA have manipulated the times to ensure that the delay falls just inside 24 hours so as to avoid compensations claims.

Your request has been considered in line with the provisions of the Freedom of Information Act 2000 (FOIA). I can confirm that the CAA holds some information within scope of the above request; please find attached the information be released you.

It should be noted the attached information was supplied to the CAA from Gatwick Airport Authorities, who themselves received the information from airlines or handling agents.

As I understand it your original correspondence had two elements. The second element is not an information rights point and has not been addressed here.

You may if you have not already done so, wish to contact NATS (UK air traffic control), EuroControl (European air traffic control), the relevant airport authority or your airline. As these are separate and unique originations I am unsure as to what, if any, additional information they will be able to provide:
